Nobuko Oyabu is a native of Japan. After graduating from Columbia College, Chicago in 1995, she worked at three daily newspapers covering news, sports, and the daily life of the Midwest. For the past eight years, she has specialized in documentary photography. She has received national awards from the National Press Photographers Association, Nebraska Press Photographers Association, Illinois Press Photographers Association, and was College Photographer of the Year.

Through her own experience of rape, she started a photo project "Stand: Faces of Rape & Sexual Abuse Survivors," and she is now dedicated to the exhibition tour full-time. This project was featured in Lifetime TV's original documentary film "Fear No More: End Violence Against Women" in February 2002. The following month, March 2002, she testified in the Congressional Caucus on Women's Issues.

In October 2002, Oyabu's work was exhibited at the Russell Senate Office Building in Washington, D.C. This exhibit was sponsored by the late Senator and Mrs. Wellstone two weeks before they were killed in a plane crash.

Oyabu currently lives in Omaha, Nebraska.
